CHAMBER COMMERCE BANQUET SHOWS ENTHUSIASM

Large Number of Members Gather Around Festive Board Last Night

ANOTHER 135 ADDED

Plan to Continue the Present Drive for 1000 on Membership Roll

The rain last night failed to dampen the spirits of the workers who gathered at the First Methodist church to celebrate the closing of the drive for new members of the Chamber of Commerce which has been under way for a month, and in which 135 new members were enrolled. More than 200 members, old and new, officials of the organization and city officials, faced the drizzling rain.

The program was preceded by a chicken-pie dinner, for which the ladies of the First Methodist church are justly popular. The workers and guests gathered in the main auditorium, and promptly at 6:30, at Mr. Sander's request, they journeyed to the banquet room below, Mrs. Spencer Robinson officiating at the organ as they marched. When all were in their places, Rev. Clyde M. Crist, pastor of the church, delivered the invocation, and while standing, everybody joined in the singing of "America," led by Mayor Robinson.

After the repast, President C. C. Cooper of the Chamber of Commerce introduced the master of ceremonies, Judge C. H. King, a recent arrival in Glendale. In acknowledging the introduction, Mr. King said:

"I feel greatly honored, dear friends, as being selected as master of ceremonies. Although I have not been among you a great while I call you friends because we have associated ourselves together in one great cause, for one great good—the building up of this community."

Assistant Secretary Sanders then read the roll call of new members, more than half of whom were present.

Secretary Rhoades presented the new members to the board of directors and the chamber of commerce in general.

"In the construction of any building," said Mr. Rhoades, "it is necessary that the structure have a foundation that will properly support it. So it is with any city. If a city is to stand it should have a chamber of commerce to support it. Since the big tent meeting the enrollment of the chamber has been increased by 135 live wire boosters and these I take pleasure of presenting to the board of directors and the chamber in general."

Toastmaster then unfurled an American flag, which everyone saluted and cheered.

Mr. King said: "To the new members who have just come into the Chamber of Commerce I wish to say that you have joined a live wire organization. Many problems confronted me when I came here three months ago, and I looked your city over thoroughly before I cast my lot with you. First, you have a fine suburban city organiaztion. You have an excellent board of city officials and also a strong working board in the Chamber of Commerce. I found the schools of the city of the very best and also a freedom of conscience and worship in every denomination. You have come heart and soul into the work of the chamber and the old members of the organization are looking to you for great things."

A vocal solo entitled "Believe Me, Those Endearing Young Charms," was rendered by Mayor Robinson.

WORLD SERIES BY MEGAPHONE

A scoreboard will be installed on the front of the building occupied by the GLENDALE DAILY PRESS, showing the runs, hits and errors during each inning, and an announcer will call the plays through a monster megaphone.

The public is invited to hear the returns. Full announcement of details will be made later.

Turning Out Doctors Like Sausage Links on Editorial Page

Some colleges make doctors by the dozen,
Like turning out loaves of bread,
Or links of sausages.

This is from "The Listening Post" in tonight's Glendale Daily Press. But that isn't all. Mr. Foley says that there are soul doctors and he tells you about them in his own way. Probably no man in the West can quite equal Mr. Foley as a philosopher. He is a regular contributor to this paper. His poetry will be found on the last page; his philosophy on the editorial page.

Henry James in his comments gives a startling review of the Arbuckle case and says that, with this parting shot, he is through with the nasty mess. He voices contempt for the type of women who make the fat buffoon a hero and says that he is not wanted on the screen. And Mr. James concludes by saying that invitations to his next party will not be sought.

There is an editorial tonight on hell as an unhappy place. This is based on the assurance of Sir Oliver Lodge, but the reputation of the infernal regions is rather firmly fixed in the public mind and possibly does not need reinforcement.

These are but samples of the editorials and features found on the editorial page. You will find it well worth an hour of your time to glance over it. Make friends with Mr. Foley and Mr. James and the other writers who are serving you each evening. Write them a letter if you desire to express your views. They keep in close touch with the people and your letter would give them a still closer touch. Let's get together, friends. What say you?

"Dad, without benefit of clergy, one otherwise perfectly good 'phone at the office of the Glendale Daily Press."

Feelings of the office staff have been deeply stirred by this unhappy event and patrons of the paper have shared the regrets of those most nearly concerned.

The telephone company has made promises to send experts to attempt revival of deceased but the experts have probably gone hence as they have not appeared at the residence of the defunct. Funeral services for some of the employes of the telephone corporation are likely to be announced soon if they do not show up soon. Meanwhile call Glendale 96 or 97, and maybe some day No. 98 will be resurrected.

ERNEST THEDE MAY GIVE FACTS OF BIG 'LIQUOR RING'

Glendale Boy Tells Father He Will Give All Possible Aid to Officers

An expose of the alleged "booze ring" activities in Glendale has been promised by Ernest Thede, arrested here last week. Thede promised his father, who visited him at the county jail in Los Angeles yesterday, that he would tell of the "ring's" activities.

Thede was arrested with Guy Wells, William Kincy and Charles Wilson in a series of raids conducted in this vicinity by prohibition enforcement agents, James L. Brown and others, on a charge of conspiracy to violate the Volstead act. He expressed himself as being repentant for his part in the alleged ring's activities and has led his father and prohibition agents to believe that he will be a government witness.

At the time of the arrest, mention was made of a possible charge of impersonating government officials on the part of some of the men but no note of this charge was made in the warrants for their arrest.

According to advices from the prohibition enforcement office, warrants are issued for three more men wanted in connection with the work of the "booze ring" but so far they have not been apprehended.

It is said that Guy Wells, former police officer of Glendale, and other members of the alleged ring have posed as officers of the United States government and taken money from alleged violators of the Volstead act as "hush money." They are also said to have confiscated liquor from alleged bootleggers on several occasions while posing as officers and later they are said to have sold the liquor.

These charges were not incorporated in the warrants for the arrest of the men now held, but it is believed they will be prosecuted on this charge later.

FILM COLONY HAS DIVISION OVER THE ARBUCKLE CASE

Some Charge Hired "Supes" Staged a Big Welcome to Fat Comedian

OTHERS DENY CHARGE

Federal Inquiry Now Being Pressed by United States Government Agent

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 1.—Rumors ran through the Holywood film colony today that the demonstration "Fatty" Arbuckle received upon his arrival yesterday was a staged affair, with hired "supes" doing the cheering. This gossip originated at the Hollywood hotel, where many film stars make their headquarters. It was hotly denied by friends of the comedian. Arbuckle's arrival in Los Angeles has in fact caused a sharp division in the ranks of the movie people.

Meanwhile Arbuckle is remaining in seclusion.

Robert H. McCormick, special assistant United States atorney-general is responsible for Arbuckle's latest difficulties. As a result of evidence produced before the Federal grand jury late yesterday, McCormick proposed to prosecute Arbuckle for violation of the prohibition laws. He declared that he had located the parties who retailed the liquor to Arbuckle and they will also be prosecuted.

District Attorney Mathew Brady of San Francisco said he is now preparing to take the next step toward bringing Arbuckle to trial.

None of the state's witnesses could be found in San Francisco today and it was admitted that the state was doing what it could to keep them out of touch with anyone who might be interested.

DUCK HUNTERS ON JOB EARLY TODAY

Local Sportsmen Invade the Various Haunts of Game Birds on First Day

Beware, ducks! With the opening of duck season today, hunters of Glendale are endeavoring to bag the limit of the elusive feathered creatures. They are invading various sections of Southern California, their hope and ambition being to get enough duck meat to "perfume" the family frying pan Sunday.

There are a few sections that are being especially favored by the hunters of Glendale today. Some of them have gone over to the Chatsworth reservoir, while some have journeyed up to the high altitudes of Big Bear lake and Little Bear lake. Others are taking advantage of the good hunting at the various gun clubs around Sunset beach and Alamitos bay, and, too, some are scouting around the sloughs near Anaheim landing. Baldwin lake, Owens' lake and the half dozen lakes that are in the Elizabeth lake section are coming in for their share of the patronage.

The local hunters are very much encouraged on account of the excellent duck weather of yesterday and today. Gus Wangenheim, in charge of the sporting goods department of Neale & Gregg hardware store, says that this cloudy weather makes the ducks fly low, a condition that is very much desired. The limit is 15 ducks.

Here's where the boys are hunting: W. Bowles and party are over at the Chatsworth reservoir, as are E. Parsons Hayward of 1392 Brand boulevard, and party.

Harry Wilson and party are gathering them in on the dizzy heights of Big Bear.

Gus Wangenheim and party will leave tonight for Lost Lake.

Glendale is being represented at practically all of the good duck hunting grounds, and there ought to be a lot of Glendale people who will enjoy "duck soup" tomorrow.

DAMAGED

IS BELIEVED YOUNG HINES DROWNED FROM FERRY

University Student Was Last Seen Leaning Over the Rail of Boat

OAKLAND, Calif., Oct. 1.—Belief that Fulmer Hines, Los Angeles boy attending the University of California may have fallen from the ferry steamer Encinal, Tuesday night and drowned, was expressed here today.

S. M. Bush of Oakland reported that he was a passenger on the boat on which Hines was last seen and that he saw something which he then believed to be a body fall overboard. No notice having been paid the incident, however, he decided he was mistaken and said nothing.

Mrs. Fred A. Hines, of Los Angeles, arrived in San Francisco to take up the search for her son, who was last seen by his companions leaning against a rail half asleep. The others in the party went to another part of the boat and when they returned Hines could not be found. A search since then has revealed no trace of him.

RAINSTORM HERE NEARLY AN INCH

Glendale was in the direct path of the first fall rain-storm to sweep Southern California yesterday. Rain started falling in Glendale about 6 a. m., and continued through last night.

Up until noon yesterday the rain was little more than a heavy mist, but later it assumed the proportion of a steady downpour. Last night the rainguage registered .33 of an inch. Last year, no rain fell during September. It is believed the storm will record over an inch, including today.

The storm drifted northward from the sea, starting at San Diego on Thursday and swept over Imperial Valley and on into Arizona. The rain did immediate benefit in the nearby sections where forest fires were burning. Fires that baffled fighters for several days were immediately extinguished by the rain yesterday and the underbrush became thoroughly dampened.

The rain coming as it did the day before the opening of the duck hunting season in Southern California improved hunting conditions very much. Swamps were flooded, opening new hunting grounds, and ducks were flying lower this morning as a result.

Deer hunters were also benefitted by the rain as it drove the deer down from the higher places to the lowland feeding grounds.

Lloyd George as Good a Fisherman as Diplomat

David Lloyd George, accompanied by his secretaris and his son, recently enjoyed a day's fishing in the Kerry river among the mountains above Gairloch. It was a success and netted him a fine catch. The photo shows the English premier with his first victim, a one and one-half pound trout.

GLENDALE OPPOSES PLANS OF BURBANK

Glendale is preparing to put up a strong fight against the annexation by Burbank of that territory northwest of this city. Burbank started procedings for the anexation of that territory Tuesday but it is not probable that the attempt will be successful.

Glendale has a prior right to this territory in case of anexation as this city has already started proceedings, prior to those started by Burbank and will in all probability be recognized in court. If the matter of annexing this teritory on the part of Burbank is successful this city will take steps to fight the anexation in the courts of the state it is thought.

UNIQUE SCHEME

PARIS, Oct. 1.—An American millionaire intending to spend the winter in Paris adopted a unique scheme to find an apartment during the lodging crisis.

Hiring an airplane he had the pilot drop 100,000 cards announcing that he was seeking an apartment with nine rooms and two baths, regardless of price. The aviator spraved the cards over the Avenue Bois de Boulogne, the Etoile, the Champs Elysee and the Rue Vivoli.

The American is reported to have received 300 replies already.

POSTAL PATRONS IN GLENDALE ARE ON THE WARPATH

Letter Reaches Destination Five Blocks From Local Office in Eight Days

Postmaster General Burleson was the object of attack, during the Wilson administrations of nearly every newspaper in the country because of poor mail service. Col. George Harvey, editor of Harvey's Weekly, delighted in publishing complaints of patrons of Burleson's department and while it may be that Burleson did not have the fullest amount of efficiency in the postoffice department, there were reasons why he could not have efficiency in its fullest measure no doubt.

We have in Glendale a specimen of "why postmaster generals leave America." Glendale has no postoffice. It is a sub-station or branch of the Los Angeles postoffice. Glendale excels in many things and it is quite probable it excels in its postal service, such as it is.

An instance or two of postal service here will suffice in this statement of facts. A Glendale citizen mailed a letter to Byron, California, on Sunday morning last. The envelope was addressed plainly in typewriting and dropped in the mailbox outside the sub-station door at 10 a. m. Monday. At 5 p. m. Wednesday, the letter had not yet arrived in Byron, over three days to cover 150 miles.

Another instance of local "circulation" comes to light. O letter mailed by a Glendale bank to a Glendale citizen in Glendale took eight days to find its owner. The letter was mailed at 6 p. m., September 22, and was delivered to the person addressed yesterday afternoon, almost eight days in transit over a space of five or six blocks from the postoffice.

Numerous other instances are related that reveal the fact that until Glendale is given a postoffice—a sure enough United States postoffice it can call its own—patrons will have to bear with the men in the sub-station who are no doubt blameless.

Alford, formerly a school teacher in Ohio, returned from a honeymoon trip through Peru, in the course of which she crossed the Andes on mlueback, and penetrated to the headwaters of the Amazon, after traversing country inhabited by tribes of savage Indians, one of which was said to practice cannibalism. Now she is enroute to China in search of further thrills, which she hopes to obtain during trips of exploration in the northern provinces and in Manchuria and Tibet. With her husband, an engineer employed by the Chinese government, she sailed from Seattle and expects to remain in the Orient three years, while Mr. Alford replaces, with steel bridges, the ancient ferries on the more important canals and rivers in China.

SOUTHARD DEFENSE QUESTIONS ON THE POISON THEORY

TWIN FALLS, Ida., Oct. 1.—From the questioning of the jury today, it appeared evident that the attorneys for Mrs. Lyda Southard will admit the fact that a large quantity of arsenic was found in Meyer's body.

Each prospective juryman was asked the following question by W. P. Guthrie, one of the defense counsel:

"If it were shown that arsenic was found in the body of the deceased, you would not regard that fact as proving the defendant's guilt, would you? Would you not, if the court so instructed you, find the defendant not guilty if the prosecution fails to show beyond a reasonable doubt that the arsenic found in the body was administered by the defendant? In other words you would not regard the presence of arsenic as positive proof of guilt?"

TWENTY-SIX BABIES ARRIVE DURING PAST MONTH

EAGLE ROCK HOME FURNISHED BY PAGE

The Page Furniture Company is branching out. Not satisfied with doing a hustling business in Glendale this firm is getting considerable trade in outside territory. Yesterday this company was awarded the contract for furnishing the home of L. Schueler of 122 Summer street, Eagle Rock. This contract includes the furnishing of everything for this home, from cellar to attic, and all of these furnishings will be of "extra quality."

The Page Company is installing a drapery department in its establishment. By this department draperies will be manufactured and installed direct in the home. Sash rods, also, will be sold and installed. Tom Pratt, a linoleum expert, of Detroit, Mich., has been employed to take care of the linoleum department of this firm. Mr. Pratt is also an expert carpet man. He promises to be a valuable addition to the force of the Page establishment.

Friend—did you see your scenario on the screen?

Writer—Yes. The director pointed it out to me last night.

WEST VIRGINIANS, PLEASURE MAD, DANCING CONSTANTLY

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 1.—West Virginia is dance mad.

The holdups, riots and strikes here and there have not satiated the thirst of West Virginians for excitement. Dancing has been called upon to add its share of thrills. The dancing craze has seized old and young.

But there is always someone to take the joy out of life. There are lots of such persons in this state, and they are mighty active, too. They have waged a strong war against school teachers dancing. Their social monkey wrench has partly wrecked the dancing machinery in some communities.

Although Captain George M. Ford, state superintendent of schools in West Virginia, has ruled that "boards of education cannot legally discharge a teacher for violation of a rule aaginst dancing, and a stipulation against dancing in a teacher's contract is null and void," the fact remains that there are few women or men who dance on the teaching staffs of the schools of the Mountain State this year. This is the result of the bitter campaigns carried out by the enemies of dancing in a number of the leading cities of the state. Some of these anti-dancing leaders are already members of the school boards, while others have brought their influence into action from the outside.

But why has West Virginia become aroused over the question and why has Superintendent Ford been called upon to make a ruling?

Simply because West Virginia is dance mad.

Down in Martinsburg the school board rose up in arms when someone asked a question about "high school dancing." Commissioner George Andrews declared that if it was a practice to hold dances in the schools he would enter a protest.

When the commissioner's investigations showed that the dances were being held in buildings over which there was no school control he was forced to give it up. The dances are going on just the same, with the pupils and teachers attending in large numbers.

Failure of some students to make satisfactory grades resulted in Prof. S. S. Jacobs, of Triadelphic district schools, near Wheeling, to order his teachers to stop dancing.

In Huntington there was so much dancing of an unsupervised nature that the high school Parent-Teacher association decided that supervised dancing was the best way out of the matter.

The proposal brought such a storm of protest that a referendum vote was taken among the parents of the school children. One minister declared that every dancer in his church could withdraw without leaving it any the worse as to members or finances. This retort drew equally caustic replies. There has recently come a lull in the storm in Huntington. The high school youngsters are still dancing, but the enemies of dancing are unwilling to recognize that fact.

Perhaps the dancing battle came to a climax in Morgantown when virtually every teacher who danced either refused to apply for a position again or else were refused a position by the board when they did apply. The board of education said that dancing and teaching did not go together and that dancing teachers were not likely to be employed.

Dance Stampede is On

Morgantown, where West Virginia State university is located, has a number of dance halls for its 14,000 people, and these halls are booked up solid from early fall to late spring, with a few summer engagements thrown in as extras. These dances attract the town folk, high school boys and girls, and many university students, of whom there are about 2,000. It's a poor night that does not have a couple of dances going on somewhere in the town.

The old dances and the newer ones, which have made the waltz look like a snail's gallop, have neither entirely satisfied some of the more graceful university girls. So they have come forth in bare feet and like draperies onto the university campus, where esthetic dancing has been a feature of each spring after it gets warm enough to remove all danger of frostbite—no, we didn't say cold feet—it takes the most garceful dancer to "get away with" this open-air dancing, but the girls say they are wild about it. The boys likewise say it is "great stuff."

THOUSANDS FOLD UP TENTS TO MOVE

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Moving day found 100,000 families here changing their abode. This number is estimated to be only 40 per cent of the number that changed homes last moving day. There were hundreds of instances of two families claiming one apartment or of a family refusing to vacate and defying the new tenants who waited to get in, their furniture heaped on the sidewalk.

CHICAGO, Oct. 1.—Twenty-five thousand Chicago families loaded their furniture on vans today and moved to new quarters. This is a decrease from the number who moved a year ago, in the opinion of J. R. Patterson, president of the Tenants' Protective League.

SURPRISE SOCIAL AT CONGREGATIONAL

The surprise social given at the Congregational church last night was a very clever affair, which drew an attendance of 100, old and young, in spite of the storm.

Each department of the church contributed some feature of the program. A farce entitled "Gossip' was presented by the social service department in which roles were taken by Mrs. Blake Franklin, Mrs. Harry Ballenger, Mrs. Hartley Shaw, Mrs. A. S. Chase, W. F. Thompson and H. W. Yarick, who covered themselves with glory.

A series of tableaux representing the seven ages of woman, was staged. It represented the baby, the school girl, the bebutante, bride, mother and grandmother. The big tableau was the wedding in which the bride (short and chunky) and the bridesmaid (tall and lanky) were colored and were portrayed by Phillip Davis and Ruark Dudley.

A surprise anthem, taken from the farce "The Tale of a Hat," was the choir's contribution. Mrs. Gladys Gibbs Sherman was the "new girl" in the choir, whose remarkable hat created quite a sensation.

The religious education department presented a dialogue to show the effect of religious education on "ignorance and superstition."

Mrs. C. M. Calderwood represented religious education; Mrs. E. W. Yarick, philanthropy; Ben Robison, patroitism; Hartley Shaw, ignorance changed to knowledge, and A. R. Chappell, superstition.

Fellowship was the title of a tableau by the department of worship, which represented a group of men of various races.

Between the major numbers Charles Comfort gave vocal solos and Mrs. L. P. Abell piano numbers.

New members were welcomed by the pastor and each was given a carnation as a badge of honor. A social hour followed the program, during which surprise refreshments, consisting of a bag of popcorn in which an all-day sucker was hidden, were served.

MRS. MABEL RUDY HOSTESS TO OFFICERS

At her beautiful new home on Central avenue, Mrs. Mabel Rudy entertained yesterday the Tuesday Afternoon Club officers and directors of last year at a four-course luncheon. Her table was centered with yellow centaureas in harmony with the tones of her dining room, and covers were laid for Mrs. Charles Hutchinson, president; Mrs. Mabel Ocker, Mrs. Walter Stamps, Mrs. Charles Temple, Mrs. E. W. Kinney, Mrs. C. E. Norton, Mrs. A. M Hunt, Mrs John Robert White and the hostess

Following the luncheon an executive session was held of the building committee, which includes the ladies named, past presidents of the club, and past chairmen of ways and means. Because of the unpleasant weather few of the past presidents reported. The group was augmented, however, by the presence of Mrs. E. D. Yard, Mrs. Daniel Campbell, Mrs. A. M. Williams, Mrs. Andrew Findlay, Mrs. E. W. W. Hayward and Miss Eva Daniels

No definite action was taken, but there was general talk concerning the building proposition, the employment of an architect, etc.

Another meeting of the building committee will be called next week.

As the opening session of the club is purely social the building question will not be considered at that time.

Building committee members feel that a tentative general plan and estimate of cost must be secured from an architect before any intelligent action can be taken by the committee or the club.

A social afternoon followed the function.

MARSHALL CONCERT WELL ATTENDED

A concert was given in the First Methodist church last night by the Marshall Concert Company of Los Angeles under the auspices of the Epworth League. No admission fee was charged, and considering the inclement weather, the attendance was very good.

Each of the numbers rendered was well received and several encores were given. Those who assisted on the program were Nicholas Reith, piano-accordeonist; Beulah Bassett, pianist; Reginald D. Marshall, xylophonist; Lillian B. Marshall, characteristic sketches.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Neutralize Irritating Acids

Kidney and bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which relieves bladder trouble.

Truths in Epigram

Insurrection of thought always precedes insurrection of arms.—Wendell Phillips (1811-84).

If all our wishes were gratified, most of our pleasures would be destroyed. — Archbishop Whately (1787-1863).

Never forget what a man says to you when he is angry.—Rev. Henry Ward Beecher (1813-87).

AFRAID OF GERMANY

Whether there is truth in the report that France will decline to apply the principle of disarmament to its land forces unless guaranteed protection from Germany, may not be known until the conference shall have made clear by its course the spirit actuating it. It may be, and is easily possible, that the rumor is but another poison gas attack. Of these there have been several, and more are to be expected.

News from Germany, coming by way of Paris, and apparently authentic, is that the surrender of arms and munitions of war by Germany has been so general, that the government wholly lacks ability to be a threat to France. Such also is the opinion of the British ministry. In a military sense, Germany has been made helpless.

The alleged demand of France would indicate the likelihood of exactly the European entanglements that the United States sought to avoid when it held aloof from the League of Nations. Such a prospect would discourage the promoters of the conference. That this is precisely the purpose the authors of the rumor entertain seems quite in accord with other activities of the opposition.

Germany has been disarmed. The participants in the November conference will not be there with any thought that the powers engaged in discussion will be willing to disarm in so complete a fashion, or presume to ask the others to endorse such course. Complete disarmament belongs to a future as yet pictured only by the idealist.

Meanwhile France ought to rest easy, fearless of German aggression.

BOOTLEGGING REVELATIONS

Perhaps there may be something of value to cities generally in exposure of the fashion in which Chicago police lend themselves to the industry of bootlegging, grown now to a billion dollar enterprise. It may be that similar methods are in vogue elsewhere. At any rate a little research work would not be amiss.

One policeman who became penitent explained that when a shipment of whisky arrived a squad in uniform would confiscate it on pretense of making an official raid. Then the stuff would be sold to actual bootleggers. The police would note the time of delivery to a customer, and appear with a demand for their share of the money. Then another police gang would raid the place, confiscate the liquor and re-sell it, besides exacting a little blackmail in cash. They would keep up this succession of processes until that particular supply of liquor had disappeared.

It is not known that methods akin to these are in vogue on this coast, and yet there are rumors of well-stocked Los Angeles cellars filled entirely with the products of raids. Many San Franciscans boast that their city is "wide open." Hundreds of dollars worth of intoxicating drinks were recently consumed in a leading hotel there. It is idle for either city to rail at the iniquity of the other. It is impossible for either to enter the court of public opinion with clean hands.

FIND HELL UNHAPPY

Sir Oliver Lodge is the author of a remarkable paper on the ethics of suicide. A rather melancholy theme at best, he invests it with enough interest so that the person having vaguely in mind the thought that life, considered in relation to the present range of prices, is not worth living, should read it. It might inspire him with a dread of flying to evils "that we know not of."

Sir Oliver gives out the assurance, based on the experience of one who had tried it, that suicides find hell an uphappy place. This seems logical enough. It might have been formulated as a belief without any purported message from the other side. The reputation of hell for unhappiness is firmly fixed in the public mind. Belief in this quality is static. It did not need re-enforcement.

The statement is given in the paper that the desperate souls who regard themselves as already in torment, and are thus actuated to take the leap, don't know what they are talking about. They will be going from bad to worse according to the judgment of the English savant. He does not pronounce the judgment as his own; it was handed to him, he asserts, from one who had the authority of personal contact.

Perhaps there will be some failing fully to agree, and yet the conclusions of Lodge in so far as they militate against self-destruction, must be accepted as sound.

TO IMPROVE CONDITIONS

Speaking before the Chicago Association of Commerce, Charles A. E. Eaton made some statements worth thinking about. They are to be taken seriously because of the standing of the man. He is manager of the industrial relations department of a vast manufacturing business and president of the American Educational association.

He believes in high wages as the most economical thing in industry. He does not believe that wages should be lowered in exact proportion to the cost of living, for that brings back the theory of "bare subsistence," which is a feature of slavery and serfdom. He thinks that only when workmen earn a surplus beyond that which they need for a livelihood can there be advance towards a better civilization.

His theory is that labor must become more efficient, realize more fully its responsibilities, more willing, more amenable to leadership. All this he thinks may be accomplished by education. He would have not only the working man educated, but the business man, and the public generally. "People must think on a larger scale than ever before." He says that depression will not disappear through manipulation of wages; that it cannot disappear with a rush, a single, definite movement, but gradually, as the ocean tides recede.

Touching practical topics the speaker adverted to the absolute necessity for markets, yet foreign trade is being neglected. Europe owes the United States $20,000,000,000 which it must pay in goods or not at all. To aid Europe in this emergency we "clap on a new tariff system." If this country makes it impossible for Europe to pay up, he favors cancellation of the vast obligation.

Unless the people of the United States get at the roots of the trouble as these lie in foreign trade, there will be no course open but to lower the standard of living. He believes this outcome probable.

Such are the expressions of an able and thoughtful citizen, given almost as he uttered them.

A MENACE TO PEACE

The naval construction program of Japan, even were other powers to proceed with their own, would result in providing that country by 1928 with more powerful battleships and battle cruisers than any fellow nation. There has been no indication that Japan has the slightest thought of amending its plans.

Japan is conquest-mad. It has determined to expand. It is not a pioneer in the sense of opening up new country. Its desire is to possess lands that have been developed by industrious neighbors. It looks with eye of peculiar longing upon China.

When an individual shows an inclination to do violence, to take that which does not belong to him, the duty of the police is to restrain him. If he goes about with deadly weapons of large caliber, displaying a willingness to draw the same, he is regarded as a menace. His claim that he was so armed only for purposes of protection are not accepted. His best defense would be to throw away his guns and behave.

Japan by its attitude suggests the truculent little bully. In a world hopeful of peace, it could not be permitted to equip itself for war. Either it will have to be induced to take a different course, or the rest of the world will have to be prepared not only to protect the helpless China, but to fight for its own interests on the seas, and the integrity of its own domains.

THE RIGHT WORD

"When you watch the sad patience with which little children serve them, you know why school semesters are called terms."

So says a writer of paragraphs. Perhaps he has not studied the children much. If there is a human emotion not in evidence where school children are gathered, it is that of sadness. However, he brings up the thought that the old "term" has about passed away as a feature of school life.

The real wonder is not that a semester should be called a term, but that "term," qualified of yore by "fall," "winter" and "spring" should have given place to the semester.

The use of the latter designation, strictly speaking, is not correct, for it has a definite meaning, indicating a period of six months. Now it is used as meaning exactly that which formerly was implied by "term," and of length varying with the season.

Lingual fashions change, as any other. Sometimes the change is a betterment. It may be an expansion of the language, called for by modern development. Perhaps it is a mere fad, its stay transient. No student would mention now the possibility of beginning college with the "fall term." That would have done well enough for his father, but the old man is out of date.

IN THE LISTENING POST

A rare shrub was dying.
A shrub that should bear colorful and fragrant blossoms.
To add to the beauty and spirit of the world.
A shrub that should bear bright leaves and a sturdy stalk and buds and flowers.

* * *

But the shrub was dying.
Its leaves were sickly and dull.
Its buds stunted and small.
And its blossoms blighted and blasted and falling quickly to pieces.

* * *

And the owner of the shrub and of the garden where it grew went to a shrub-doctor.
For there are all kinds of doctors in the world.
So many that the word has lost a lot of its dignity and significance.

* * *

Some colleges make doctors by the dozen.
Like turning out loaves of bread.
Or links of sausage.
A scroll and a diploma and a few signatures and the thing is done.

* * *

There are doctors of medicine.
And doctors of law.
And doctors of divinity.
And nature doctors and corn doctors and horse doctors and patent medicine doctors and doctors of philosophy and letters and others.
Until nearly every calling has its doctors.

* * *

A plumber might even be called a doctor of drainage.
For the great cult of doctors keeps enlarging and swelling.
About any institution may sign its scrolls and turn out new varieties of doctor.

* * *

But that is only an incidental observation and beside the mark.
The thing we were talking about was the shrub.
That was dying.
The shrub-doctor came.
And examined the sick plant.

* * *

Then he took samples of the soil.
He found the water supply by which it was moistened.
And he took notice of the aphis and the blight and the parasites that infested the stalk and leaves and blossoms.

* * *

"It does not get sun enough," he said.
"The water that moistens it has injurious properties."
"The soil is infected and does not supply the right nutriment."
"There are destructive aphis at work upon the leaves and stems."

* * *

"What is to be done?" asked the gardener.
"Treatment and care," said the shrub doctor.
"Renewed soil, pure water supply, destruction of parasites and all that."

* * *

And the shrub doctor went to work.
He trimmed away the branches of overhanging trees to give the shrub sunshine.
And he smudged and smoked and sprayed and trimmed and cut away until he had the shrub nearly down to a single stalk.

* * *

"There has often to be destruction before we can get healthy growth," he said.
"The shrub has great potentialities for beauty and blossom and fragrance."
"It is dying from lack of nourishment and the attacks of parasites."
"But I think we will save it."
And he did.

* * *

The stalk became sturdy and sent out new shoots.
The blossoms eventually became rich and glorious.
The fragrance was renewed and delightful.
And the shrub was the wonder and admiration of lovers of the beautiful.

* * *

And once there was a human soul.
That was blighted and full of the aphis of greed and hatefulness and intolerance and vanity and a lot of blighting things.
And its blossoms were stunted and blasted.

* * *

And a soul-doctor came.
Who saw at once the soul was dying.
Useless to the world.
And he began a course of treatment with kindness and suggestion and truth and helpfulness.
Cut away a lot of blighting thinkings and habits.

* * *

And the soul came back to health.
As the shrub did.
And gladdened the owner of the garden.
Who was also the owner of the sick soul.
And the soul doctor merely did to the soul what the shrub doctor did for the shrub.
Smudged and sprayed away the parasites.
The aphis.
Cut off many stalks and stems.
Gave it new nourishment.
And let it grow!

SONGS OF THE POETS

Days of My Youth—By St. George Tucker, 1752-1828

Days of my youth,
Ye have glided away;
Hairs of my youth,
Ye are frosted and gray;
Eyes of my youth,
Your keen sight is no more;
Cheeks of my youth,
Ye are furrowed all o'er;
Strength of my youth,
All your vigor is gone;
Thoughts of my youth,
Your gay visions are flown.

Days of my youth,
I wish not your recall;
Hairs of my youth,
I'm content you should fall;
Eyes of my youth,
You much evil have seen;
Cheeks of my youth,
Bathed in tears have you been;
Thoughts of my youth,
You have led me astray;
Strength of my youth,
Why lament your decay?

Days of my age,
Ye will shortly be past;
Pains of my age,
Yet awhile ye can last;
Joys of my age,
In true wisdom delight;
Eyes of my age,
Be religion your light;
Thoughts of my age,
Dread ye not the cold sod;
Hopes of my age,
Be ye fixed on your God.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

DISARMAMENT THE WRONG WORD

[Springfield Union]

Very often the American habit of abbreviation results in the greater clarity or pungency of the idea to be conveyed, but sometimes it may create wrong impressions. The newspapers and the public alike have fallen into the practice of calling the coming conference at Washington a disarmament conference; the word disarmament is being constantly used as if it expressed the primary object.

In an interview with the Washington correspondents who have been equally guilty of the same incorrect expression, Secretary Hughes good naturedly points out that the official name is "The Conference on the Limitation of Armaments." The difference is obvious.

TWO KINDS OF RICH

[Detroit Free Press]

"Fatty" Arbuckle is just another illustration of the fact that it is not enough in this world to be able to make money. The difference always between the rich fool and the rich wise man is that the latter knows how to spend his surplus well. The man who tries to spend all his money on himself is headed for destruction. It can't be done in safety. To be wisely rich one must be modest, kindly, cheerful, helpful and thoughtful of others. And we never heard of a rich man landing in a prison cell because he gave to hospitals, endowed colleges, sent poor boys to school, or made orphan asylums more comfortable. The fault isn't with money; it's with the boobs who sometimes get hold of it.

AN INTERNATIONAL SMOKESTACK

[Springfield Republican]

The assembly of the League of Nations was created partly in order that countries with a long-standing grievance like Bolivia could blow off steam.

Comment on the News

By HENRY JAMES

So fas as this column is concerned the case of Roscoe Arbuckle is about over. A brief review may not be out of place prior to dismissal of the subject: Arbuckle was enjoying a depraved and degrading debauch in a suite of the St. Francis hotel in San Francisco. He was clad in pajamas and bath robe as he entertained guests with food and drink. There were men and women present. One of the women died soon after from injuries said to have been inflicted by Arbuckle. In the investigation that followed the only thing established with certainty was that conduct at the orgy had been on a plane of vileness not to be described. Even the witnesses on the stand, each disgraced by the association, could not bring themselves to tell details, but begged the privilege of writing answers to searching questions. The end of the matter was that Arbuckle was released on bail of $5000. Judged by precedent this finishes the matter. Probably the charge will not be pressed, and if pressed, nothing will come of it. Which adds shame to a shameful situation.

* * *

The conversation of the judge prior to giving his decision afforded a curious study. Evidently he had construed the evidence according to some inborn theory of his own. Lazarus of old was dead all over, but the modern Lazarus of the bench appears dead only from the collar button up. His oration was as though, having staged a play, he wanted to explain his technique to the audience.

* * *

An amazing phase of the climax in the court room was that women surrounded Arbuckle, trying to clasp his hands, to touch his garments, to congratulate him with laughter and tears. All through the hearing women had been permitted to jam the court room. The understanding was that they were good women devoted to some form of uplift. So they sat as the very air seemed to gather poison from the moral decay that formed the chief background and exhibit. There was, it was hoped, some thought in their minds as to the erring sister who had been done to death in the cesspool of iniquity where Arbuckle and his intimates had floundered. But the outcome did not sustain this view. There were congratulations, not on the triumph of justice and morality, not that the judicial arm had been extended to shield society, but that a gross offender was going forth to liberty. Discussing this episode one easily might say something almost indelicate in intensity.

* * *

However, the Arbuckle career as a public figure is over. While the contemplation of his fat presence may melt the austerity, and charm the eye, of certain feminine types, the public will have none of him. He is not wanted on the screen. Considered as a business proposition alone the producers could not afford to have him there. Invitations to his next party will not be sought.

An American aviator, John A. MacReady, holds the altitude record, having ascended to a height of 40,800 feet. He found the weather very cold up there. THE CRUISE OF THE OAKOOPAY

Being the second of a series of articles on a 5000-mile journey through the Western states

By CHARLES B. GUTHRIE

To those who have made the trip to San Francisco overland there can be but little that is new or strange on that wonderful ride that is all too familiar.

We have never made the trip, either "Coast" or "Inland" that we have not seen new things and noticed great changes. California is famous throughout the world for its length of highways, but no sooner are the new links finished, than the earlier construction becomes torn and cracked and broken, so that it is as difficult to drive the highway as it is the rough country roads of the colder states.

Therein lies the problem of good roads—maintenance against the ravages of traffic. In the colder states they worry over the climatic effects and wonder how they can build a smooth road that will stand the freezing of winter.

We have no such menace but we expect rotten construction to last only long enough to get the money. Better work is being done now however, and the concrete highways are pleasant to drive, even though the joints punctuate the going like the click of rails under your Pullman berth. California can profit by a close inspection of the greatest highways on the coast—in Oregon and Washington—where the turns are run out 15 or 20 feet from the bluffs and wide enough for several cars to pass. The straightaways are 24 feet wide and afford a subtle sense of security when hitting 35 miles.

The early part of the day led us across the San Fernando valley, that marvelous transition from a great grain field and sheep ranch to a rose-bordered fairyland of trees, homes and gardens. Up through the Calabassas hills, whose rolling, tree-dotted contours and winding coulees point the way of dashing, galloping horses mounted by early-day outlaws whose rendezvous was the recesses of these then distant hills, into whose midst progress has pushed the electric street lights of a modern suburban district.

Down the famous Conejo grade now polished, smoothed and leveled—robbed of its former terrors by corps of engineers and an enterprising community. Sweeping down through the rich valley of the Camarillo, alongside of miles upon miles of Lima bean fields, rushing by magnificent homes built by fruits of the pod where mud huts and ragged houses once marked the abode of early Spanish families.

Around the bend into old San Buena Ventura, filling the lungs and eyes and ears with the brisk slap of the briny breath of the sea. This quaint old Mexican town, only recently taking on signs of life, was known in the Southland for its old mission and its corrugated main street. The old mission still stands but the corrugations have been ironed out and some architectural beauties look down from the north as your surprised gaze passes along the row.

Instead of turning to your right up the canyon, across the Ventura river and through the park to begin the noted scramble over the Casitas pass, a journey that reminds me of a time long ago when we took that ride, followed by a couple in an old White Streak Buick without top or windshield, and were present at the opening of the Arlington hotel at Santa Barbara. Upon arrival my wife said to the lady in the Streak: "Wasn't the scenery beautiful in Casitas pass?" Her reply has lingered long in our memory as we crossed other mountains later: "I don't know—I did not see it."

The old pass has passed out and now we ramble over the boards of the Rincon causeway along the shore line, skirting the hills on a narrow dividing line between the bluffs and the breakers.

Into Santa Barbara, the beautiful, coasting down the curving vistas of Montecito, glimpsing the homes of millionaires and McAdoos.

Flower-bordered and lily-covered, the wayside swamps and ponds have become charming aquatic gardens at the foot of mesas turned to lawns and links.

Over the old Gaviota, racing through the quiet of San Juan, the concrete continues and the afternoon slips by.

Into Pismo Beach for dinner at a famous little restaurant where service is more important than numbers served, where the steamed clams become heaps of rattling shells as you breathe the ozone and swallow the tiny morsels of buttered shellfish.

San Luis Obispo, another famous member of the Towns without pride,

Over whose streets
No angel can ride
And retain the composure
Of the silent lamb,
Without murmuring the word
That rhymes with "ham."

'Sdifferent now, the smooth pavement is all cluttered up with automobiles and a clever driver it is who can sneak up the main street of old San Luis without appropriating the rear bumper or a number plate of a machine headed into the curb. What a thrill there used to be in driving the Cuesta grade after night, when the rocks and ruts and roots marked the ascent of the long, weary climb—now, over on high and going strong.

Atascadero, the ramming of a village down the throat of a hillside. Methodically measured development for a price, yet affording homes to hundreds. We used to cross the Henry ranch and revel in the sunset glow on the golden grain. No grain now, but the finely chiselled details of a modern, aristocratic suburb. How glad we were, however, to forget the glories of golden grain and wake up the inmate of a convenient garage that never grew on a wheat stalk, and wheedle him out or enough gas to get to Pasa Robles.

The Pass of the Oaks, fragrant odor of sulphur water, whose welcome was as the smell of rotten eggs. Tired unto crabbing, we pulled up at the old hostelry and enjoyed our first night out.

Going north out of Pasa Robles used to be a series of long fords, now the bridges after many years are all in and the journey is now a matter of hours into the bay cities, instead of days.

The Salinas river continues to flow north, being such a rare stunt for an American river to perform that its scarcity of water is offset by its unusual direction. Old San Miguel mission gets but a sidelong glance as the attempt to restore its ancient appearance has robbed it of some of its former attractiveness.

How Salinas has perked up since the days when the only place to eat was in the rear of a saloon. Some town now. The run up to San Jose and into Oakland was all so short that dinner time of the second day found us tucked under a table at the Hotel Oakland, clean and hungry.

Here the figuring and planning started, and here the diary and expense account ended. Keeping track of gas, oil and grub held out for two days, but died a natural death—the wife forgot how much we paid for lunch and the kid couldn't remember the price of the fruit. I was sure I had put in more gas but didn't know what the bill was. I am convinced that driving an auto is not necessarily a bookkeeper's job. Well, we won't bother with it any more, I know how much I had when I left and I have no fear that I will not be able to count what I have left when I get home.

In lieu of the beaten path to Sacramento, traversed by nearly every car we ever owned, our desire led us up the coast, so we headed for Berkeley, where we turned onto College avenue through the grounds of the University of California. We were quite surprised at the number of buildings and beauty of the surroundings. On to Richmond, to take up the San Rafael ferry. While waiting for the boat, we met some friends from Los Angeles who were going to San Quentin. To our great surprise we learned that the penitentiary was located just around the corner from the landing, so we took a look at that private hotel where so many bankers and real estate brokers stop. We couldn't stop long, and since the boys were all busy, we didn't interrupt them.

Here the madrone tree filled the atmosphere with its pungent odor and the memory of the smell clings to the name of San Quentin, heavenly compensation for the sorrow within.

Through bustling San Rafael, we now began to settle down to get an eyeful of everything we passed. The little lady who didn't want to come now began to remark about things and reconcile herself to her fate.

Petaluma, where the oldest inhabitant cannot remember when the hen quit setting and machinery took up the job. We expected to see hens and chickens all over the road and in the air and everywhere, but like the tourist who expected to find the streets of Los Angeles paved with gold and ranges growing on lamp-posts, we sure didn't see 'em.

We almost got out of town without seeing a chicken, but the reputation of the town was saved—we saw almost as many as there are across the car line in Inglewood.

Santa Rosa—Santa Rosa, where have I heard that name before—oh, yes! that's where Luther Burbank lives, and sure enough, we drove right by, close up to his front gate, read his name in gold letters on the door of his detached reception room.

The route continued to lay, or rather climb, over hills and mountains and evening overtook us as we bumped into Ukiah, the end of the paved road. From here on we were to feel the load—realize what a thousand pounds piled in, on, over, under and across a heavy closed car meant. Realize, also, what a marvelous piece of mechanism an automobile is.

The roads north of Ukiah seemed worse because of the roads south—the mountains north seemed steeper because they were new to us, but the ever-changing hills never get old to us, so the discomfort of the road was tempered by the pleasure of seeing.

Our first night in camp was at Philipsville, near Garbersville, between two husky redwoods about ten feet in diameter and so high that the kid couldn't sleep for fear they would fall on us.

The mother, with her comforting assurance, informed the miss that those trees had been there for 6000 years and probably would hold out for one more night. In the midst of this forest of gigantic and majestic redwoods we rested a day and two nights and here we experienced our first taste of the spirit of Northern California.

Camped near us was a party from a nearby town and the evening conversation reeked with an undercurrent of jibes of Southern California. We were continually thereafter to near all sorts and conditions of people, most of whom had never been south of San Francisco, take a crack at Los Angeles. In each instance where I could get a chance, I closely interrogated the knocker to ascertain his source of information, and invariably the trail led to San Francisco. It seems that the entire north end of the state, and surrounding states, is and are permeated with this insidious propaganda.

Let the foul work go on—every knock is a boost and every knocker becomes a booster when his curiosity forces him to visit the playground of the world.

From Garbervville to Eureka the road turns and twists through miles and miles of enormous trees till the Sequoia, the Wawona, the Mariposa and the Big Basin seem like isolated groups of the one big forest.

Eureka, the baby San Francisco, without Market street and the Ferry. Cold, clammy, damp and dismal. One night at the Vance and out of town. The detours around here easily win the pennant for bumps. Eureka, touted as a live, booming city, proved to be a cold replica of a wet fishing village whose streets were lined with square buildings of such vast number as to seem out of place in such a small town. They claim 20,000 souls—we didn't see all of them—not by 19,500.

Early out and gone, straight eastbound for Redding, where we were to take up the journey north over the Pacific highway. I used to study geography in my younger days, from a big square book that told of mountains, valleys, rivers, towns and what each state was noted for. I remember reading of a Coast Range, but it was pictured as low hills compared to the Rockies.

On the trip I studied geography on the ground and I hope some day to write a book on "Mountains I Have Met." The Coast Range is there, all right, but the author of my school book left the "S" off. Sixteen times I crossed the range and from personal observation I should say that it was a moot question as to whether the radiator or the gas tank was on the top most.

About half way across the ranges we put up for the night (you know, all authors say "put up" when speaking of stopping at a hotel) at a place called Auto Rest—"put up" was the right phrase—I put up several dollars for a place to sleep but the following day the name of the place was forcibly impressed on me—Auto Rest—I added, "But you don't."

Over Rattlesnake Hill we wended our weary way, still traveling through dense forest, by Beegum, Hayfork, Ono and Igo, till the ups and downs and the funny names got into my blood and I thought soon I would begin to babble and maybe froth at the mouth. Miles and miles and miles of mountains, level land and valleys as scarce as the proverbial hen's teeth. Suddenly the forest ceased and we rounded a bend on the final slope of the green area to come out face to face with the blue sky and no bottom below, round and round the knobs of hills on the edge of eternity, ever driving into the sky with the sun's rays hot on our trail—my goat took its flight, my hands shook, my legs ached and my heart was in my mouth. On and on for hours till I wondered would the turns never end and the road lead out to safe and sure level country.

All roads lead to an end, and the climax was Redding. Never did we want to get out of a place so fast. Shriveling with the heat we pushed on, and preserverance conquered—too late to make Dunsmuir—but we found a comfortable place to camp on the banks of the great Sacramento river, where coffee soothed the stomach and the sheets cooled our hot and aching limbs.

FIRE ALARM HERE IS MUCH NEEDED

A local business man in speaking of some of the needs of Glendale yesterday, said:

"There is one thing that this city needs more than a new hotel, more than additional car lines and just as bad as the sewer system that is to be installed, and that is a fire alarm system."

According to this man, who has been identified with the business life of Glendale for some time, the only way that the fire department can be summoned is by using the telephone and there are many people who have not and cannot secure telephones.

Only last spring, he noted, a fire that might easily have been disastrous occurred in the heart of the city. An attache of an institution here in Glendale noticed that the roof of one of the buildings of the institution was in flames. An attempt was made to call the fire department on the telephone. After several attempts had proven unsuccessful, it was necessary for the attache of the institution to run to the fire house to summon the apparatus. Had the slightest wind been blowing the whole institution would have been destroyed and several lives lost.

According to this man, who has investigated, there are 85 cities in California that have fire alarm systems and only four of 4,000 or more population that have no alarm system systems at all, and Glendale, one of the most progressive cities in the state, is listed among the four without such fire protection.

The cost of an adequate fire alarm system for Gendale would not be in excess of $20,000, and this system could be purchased on contract with deferred payments extending over a period of ten years. This would make an addition of$2,000 to the budget, annually, all that was required to install a safeguard against fire.

The increase in the tax rate of the city would not exceed 2 cents per capita. The increase in taxes would be more than balanced by the fact that the insurance rate would be reduced approximately 10 per cent.

PLAY ON ROOFS

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—Children's playgrounds on church roofs instead of steps were recommended by Harriet Stanton Blatch, socialist candidate for comptroller.

FATHER HOLDS TRUE TO MRS. SOUTHARD

(Copyright 1921 by United Press)

TWIN FALLS, Idaho, Oct. 1.—"She is our daughter and we are going to stand by her."

This was the declaration of "Billy" Trueblood, father of Mrs. Lyda Southard. This is the first time Trueblood has broken his silence since the opening the trial.

With bowed shoulders and his visage pathetically touched with sadness, Trueblood, a well liked and respected rancher, an elder in the Christian church, a man whose honesty and uprightness are unquestioned, is setting daily by the side of the daughter who is accused by the State of poisoning four husbands, her brother-in-law and baby, after she left the little ranch house of her parents, a few miles out of Twin Falls, and went out into the world.

"We do not believe, as our daughter, that she could have committed all these crimes they charge her with. She was always such a sweet, sunny girl about the house, with never a sign of a bad disposition. Knowing her as we did when she lived with us, we can't believe that she is anything but innocent.

"Of course, the family feels very keenly having the eyes of the country upon us and one of our children in this way. We have always been humble people, who have lived quiet lives, and have always tried to be honest and to live according to Christian principles.

"Of course," continued the old man, "I realize that the public has a right to look into anything and I believe it is best that it should all be out in the open, and, although the newspaper notoriety has been felt very deeply by us, I realize that the newspapers have a right and really should keep the people informed.

"All I ask of the court and the newspapers is that they play fair and that they do not act unjustly. I do not want to ask any especial favors for Lyda, but I do not want her to be at a disadvantage at the trial."

HORSESHOE PITCHERS IN CITY SATURDAY

Officers and delegates of the State Horse Shoe Pitchers' association will meet in Glendale this afternoon. The business session will be held at 2 o'clock in the city hall, after which, if the weather permits, the horseshoe pitching contests will be held on the club grounds on West Broadway, between Brand boulevard and Central. The principal business of the meeting at 2 o'clock will be the annual election of officers. D. W. Williams, champion horseshoe pitcher of California, and Gilman Hoyt, champion of Long Beach, will pitch a 50-point walking exhibition game. The Long Beach aggregation will bring five teams of pitchers to Glendale, and these will compete against several combined club teams.

Mr. Williams has just returned from the National Horse Shoe Pitchers' tournament in Minneapolis, having won ninth place in competition with 62 entries, some of them world champions. The exhibitions to be played Saturday will be on the Glendale horseshoe pitching grounds on West Broadway. Teams from Pasadena and South Park, Los Angeles, are expected to be on hand.

CITY FATHERS PASS NEW ORDINANCES

Ordinances adopted by the city council Thursday at the regular meeting of that body are as follows:

Ordinance providing for the signing by the mayor of certain municipal improvement bonds authorized to be issued prior to the adoption of the present city charter.

Abandonment of proceedings for widening of Brand boulevard at San Fernando Road and deed from H. W. White was accepted.

Resolutions adopted by the members of the council are as follows: Resolution ordering the improvement of Milford street.

Resolution ordering improvement work on Maple street.

A resolution of intention to abandon alley between Broadway and Wilson for the purpose of erecting a hotel by the Ambrosini Hotel Company. This ordinance was accompanied by a communication from Mr. Ambrosini stating that he would pay for the changing of the present pole lighting system to the underground system and that a trust deed to the property dedicated by the city for the proposed hotel was in escrow as a forfeit in case the hotel is not built.

CIZEK REPORTS BIG RUSH OF BUSINESS

"Growth along all lines," reports E. W. Cizek, of the Cizek Auto Electric Co., corner Brand boulevard and Colorado street.

"We are rushed to death," said Mr. Cizek today. "There seems to be no end to the way business is coming our way. I can't account for this wave of business, unless it is that the people like square-dealing and the courteous treatment we are constantly endeavoring to afford them. We aim to treat others as we would have others treat us."

This firm is agent for the Willard storage battery, which is proving so popular. The equipment in this establishment is being enlarged and the interior is being rearranged so that the public may be served more efficiently. The sales and repair force is being enlarged to take care of the increasing trade.

TO REDUCE

PARIS, Oct. 1.—The United States will participate with the Allies in consideration of measures to reduce the total cost of all the armies in German-occupied territory to 240,000,000 gold marks per annum.

Another question will be the methods by which the United States is to be paid for the accumulated cost of the upkeep of her army on the Rhine. The United States has expended nearly $260,000,000 for the maintenance of her forces of occupation.

MOTORISTS GO TO SEASHORE DURING HEATED SPELL

The last few days have been unusually hot and as a result there are dozens of motorists in Glendale who are planning to spend at least part of the week-end at the seashore or the mountains. Last week in its weekly motor trip suggestion, which has become a regular motor section feature for each Saturday, The Press offered a trip up into San Gabriel canyon. A number of local residents made the trip as suggested and each reports a mighty fine time.

This week's trip will be a combination of mountain and seashore, and will take the motorist down on the beach at the mouth of Santa Monica canyon. There are doubtless many local people who have enjoyed a trip to this locality, but so delightful is a jaunt to that seaside spot that it may very profitably be given "another trial." To those who have not enjoy a trip to Santa Monica canyon the trip will be a revelation for it is one of the finest in Southern California.

Starting from Broadway and Brand the motorist wil go south on Brand to Los Feliz avenue and continue on that highway, through South Glendae, across the S. P. tracks, over the river and on to Vermont avenue in Hollywood. Proceed south on Vermont to Sunset boulevard, onto which turn to the right, and continue westward past the Beverly Country Club, which is one of the most elaborate affairs of its kind in Southern California, and on to the Soldiers' home in Sawtelle. It will take but a few minutes to ride around the buildings of the Soldiers' home and it will be well worth the trouble.

From the Soldiers' home continue south down the speedway of the old Santa Monica race course to the Palasades. Prop down the grade leading to the pier and turn right before reaching the pier onto the concrete highway that runs along the ocean front and just a few feet from the breakers. Continue west on this boulevard to Santa Monica canyon. The motorist may camp right on the beach and may, during the day, enjoy a dip in the ocean, or he may continue up into Santa Monica canyon, where he will find sage brush and scrub oak to his heart's content.

After enjoying a day in the beautiful Santa Monica canyon section the motorist should start home between 4 and 4:30 o'clock, in order to get home by dark. From the mouth of Santa Monica canyon go westward—away from Santa Monica. Continue westward past the long wharf, Temescal canyon, Punga canyon, Santa Ynes canyon and on to Topanga canyon. Turn to the right at Topanga canyon and follow its course northward until the Ventura highway is reached. The drive through this canyon should be taken slowly so that its beauties may be fully enjoyed. The distance through the canyon is between eight and ten miles and every turn in the road opens up new wonders to the motorist who is in any way a lover of the hills.

Turn to the right onto Ventura highway and proceed eastward through walnut, orange and apricot groves which are models of their kind, to the Marion road, at which point the Ventura highway is closed for repairs. Turn left at the Marion road and continue to Marion, a thriving little country center, then turn right and continue to Van Nuys. Drive through Van Nuys and on to Lankershim, where turn to the left on the road just south of the school. This road will bring the tourist to Burbank, when he should turn to the right and continue down the San Fernando road to Glendale. If the motorist does not hurry the homeward trip should take about two hours, this enabling him to reach Glendale shortly before dark. This trip as outlined is something like 60 miles in length.

Judging from the interest that was shown by Glendale motorists in the initial auto trip suggestion of The Press it would seem that these trips are destined to become quite popular. Those enjoying any of them are finding that it is "Glendale day" wherever they go.

CITIZENS PROTEST AT TRUCK TRAFFIC

A communication from F. P. Newport was read at the meeting of the city council Thursday asking that Glorietta avenue be protected from heavy traffic. The letter stated that heavy trucks hauling grapes from adjacent vineyards and trucks loaded with sand and gravel, are using that street and considerable damage has been done. On motion of Councilman Kimlin the city attorney was instructed to draw up an ordinance closing the street to heavy traffic.

The closing of Isabel street between Doran and Monterey road to heavy traffic was also discussed, but no action was taken. Residents said that heavy trucks hauling sand and gravel from Verdugo wash are using this street.

Building Superintendent Marek made a report regarding the street and said that at present it is the only outlet. The matter was held over for further investigation.

MRS. AGNESS BALL IS TAKEN SUDDENLY

Mrs. Agnes Bell, who has been a resident of Glendale for two years, suddenly expired yesterday at 3:30 o'clock, following a stroke of apopexy, at 343 Salem street, the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Gordon and a daughter, Miss Emily Bell.

Though a native of England, Mrs. Bell had spent the greater part of her life in the United States. She was 79 years of age.

Surviving are the two daughters mentioned, another daughter, Mrs. F. S. Clinton of Prairie du Chien, Wis., whose son recently joined the Gordons in Glendale, and four sons, Robert Bell of Butte, Mont., John H. Bell of Chicago, Harold Bell of Council Bluffs, Ia., and Richard Bell of Kearney, Nebraska.

The remains will be shipped to McGregor, Ia., to be buried beside the body of her husband. Mr. Gordon will leave with the remains today.

"GIRL IN THE TAXI" AT PALACE GRAND

What promises to be one of the best farce comedies yet produced will be shown at the Palace Grand theatre Sunday and Monday. It is the latest Mr. and Mrs. Carter DeHaven production, "The Girl in the Taxi," which follows in the wake of the stars' previous farce comedy, "Twin Beds." The story is an adaptation of the famous musical comedy stage success by Stanislaus Strange and is directed by Lloyd Ingraham.
Other prominent members of the cast include King Baggott, the old time screen hero who has appeared in over 300 photoplays; Grace Cunard, the serial queen who was a star in her own right not so long ago, and Otis Harlan.
The other feature on this double bill is Hugh Ford's Paramount production, "The Call of Youth," filmed entirely in beautiful England, and with a great English cast. A Paramount cartoon and Henri Monet's organ solo complete the program. Gloria Swanson in Elinor Glyn's "the Great Moment," closes its engagement tonight.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

A CREED

Something you want, my boy?
Something that's good for you?
Gladly I'd do, my boy.
All that I could for you.
But what you'd get my boy,
Don't sit and sigh for it,
Don't fuss and fret, my boy,
Don't merely cry for it,
Get out and try for it,
Aim and aim high for it.

Something you need, my boy?
Yes, and you yearn for it?
This be your creed, my boy,
Let your soul burn for it,
Till you are hot, my boy,
Hot with the fire of it,
Then you shall flame, my boy
With the desire of it.
Don't think to shirk for it,
Through mist and murk for it
Strive for it, work for it.

Some end to gain, my boy?
Some end that's glorious?
Ah, there is pain, my boy,
And the victorious
Walk in no path of joy;
Yet, if you long for it,
Then shall you strive for it,
This be your song for it:
Treat not with wrong for it,
Struggle, be strong for it.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and luster to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

The new price of the Hupmobile were $5000 instead of $1485, the processes by which it is manufactured would still be the same.

Such factory practices are not unusual for the costlier cars. They are decidedly unusual for cars of the Hupmobile price.

They mean the use of finer materials; more searching material-tests; more scientific and precise shop and machine work; more exacting inspection of finished parts.

The Hupmobile costs more to manufacture; and it is worth far more to its owner.

Its great economy, its very small repair costs, its day-after-day reliability, long life, and high re-sale value are the things that make the Hupmobile worth more. They are the direct, tangible results of Hupmobile production methods.

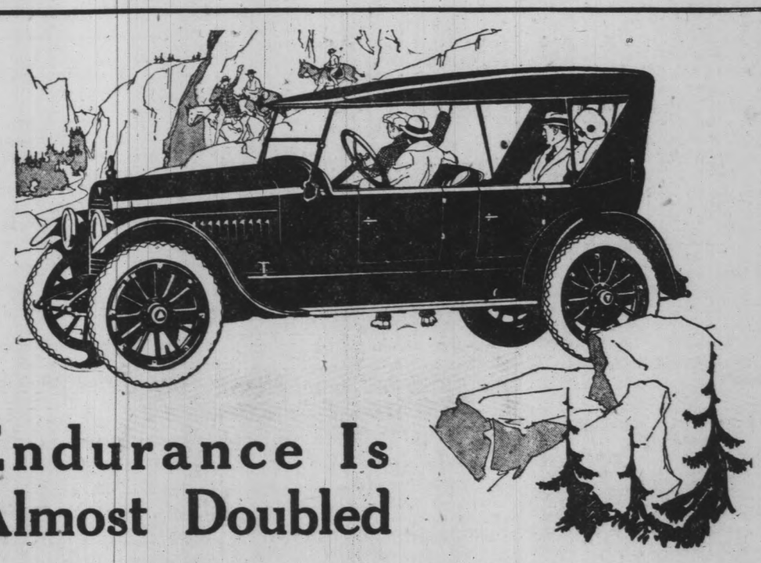
HUDSON



Endurance Is Almost Doubled

In all Hudson's records this important fact is clear: No ability is sacrificed in one direction to gain supremacy in another.

For instance the great speed of the Hudson means no forfeit of other qualities. For in official tests the Super-Six has also outperformed all other types in endurance, hill-climbing and acceleration.

Only a supreme advantage could account for such all-round dominance. Hudson has it in the Super-Six motor. In the same size motor the Super-Six principle adds 72% to power and 80% to efficiency. Endurance is practically doubled, through minimizing vibration almost to nil—nearer the ideal than any type we know.

Moreover this extra ability in speed and power means driving at half load in all ordinary motoring. It means absence of strain, thus much less mechanical deterioration.

How these qualities are valued by motorists is shown by Hudson's position as a sales leader among fine cars, for nearly six years.
